(2.3b)

2. (9TH Cir. 1974 people v. O'Hearn, 931p.2d1168 (colo 1997)

3. The Seventh Circuit has recently articulated the familiar probable cause standard by stating that: (a) a police officer has probable cause to arrest when, at the moment the decision is made, the facts and circumstances within her knowledge and of which she has reasonably trustworthy information would warrant a prudent person in believing that the suspect had committed or was committing an offense. This flexible, commonsense approach does not require that the officer's belief be correct or even more likely true than false, as long as it is reasonable. Jones v. Webb, 45 F.3d 178, 182 (7th Cir. 1995). The Court Clarified Whiteley in United States v. Hensley, 469 U.S. 221 (1984) where a warrantless Terry stop was made by one police department at the request of another police department.
